

Finally, a Center of Excellence for back & neck pain

New trends are shaping up in medicine as physicians, patients, insurers and employers all strive to improve the quality of health care. Research has proven that complex health issues are best treated by highly specialized Centers of Excellence.

For example, the best care for back and neck pain requires a team approach of complementary disciplines.

We're pleased to announce we've done just that. South Carolina Spine Center combines three neurospine surgeons and an MD specialist in non-surgical spine care — all fellowship-trained in spine, the highest level of medical education. At the same location we have MRI; an injection suite; a team of physical therapists; a hydrotherapy pool; and the most advanced surgical suite with video navigation.

For non-surgical care of back and neck pain, Dr. Karl Boellert, MD, can provide perform pain-relieving spinal injections that allow many patients to recover without the need for surgery.

If non-surgical treatments fail to work, the three fellowship-trained spine surgeons specialize in minimally invasive spine surgery, so many patients can be home later the same day.

The spine center is referred the most complex back problems from across the region. South Carolina Spine Center is consistently ranked in the top 10 percent of all spine programs in the U.S. by CareChex® and is recognized as a Blue Distinction Center by BlueCross BlueShield. It is also the only spine center in the state of South Carolina to be included in an exclusive national listing of credentialed spine centers by SpineCenterNetwork.com.
